

Highland Support Project

Serving Maya Communities of Guatemala

Partners in Service Introduction

Partners in Service volunteers from North America learn, work, and share with people in Latin America, forming true partnerships of understanding and compassion. While performing meaningful service in communities of need, volunteers provide invaluable assistance to those less fortunate than themselves materially. In return, the people of the developing world offer Partners in Service volunteers unique insights and perspectives that help North Americans to better understand themselves and their world.

As a non-profit program, Partners in Service is dedicated to providing transformational travel experiences for both its volunteers and the people they serve.

For more than ten years now, Partners in Service has led hundreds of volunteers on life-changing service trips to the developing world.

The Partners in Service experience is much more than a week-long trip. To help provide enduring transformational growth, the Partners in Service staff has created resources such as Transformational Ministries and the Post Script Project. Through Transformational Ministries, the Partners in Service staff explores the processes and issues of service in the developing world. In our new Post Script Project, Partners in Service volunteers share their own personal accounts of their service experiences.

Partners in Service welcomes the opportunity to tailor each trip to your unique team, with activities and destinations that focus on a wide range of interests. Some of the subjects teams have explored with Partners in Service include the spiritual aspects of service, the issues and realities of globalization, the history and current politics of Guatemala, and the cultural ancestry of the Mayan people.

The Partners in Service staff strives to meet your every goal and address your every concern. The information in this packet provides all of the information you will need to begin planning your transformational service trip with Partners in Service.
